

Writing

Cheers for a great tool that actually makes programmers want to write documentation!

When I write, I try to write all information at once, if possible.

But if I am somewhere in the middle with my article, then in the end of the article there is three dots:

And you can share the information I have written here for a free, or if you really like what I have written here you can donate me, with money, or with other good stuff I may need.

And thank You for your interest!
